School report cards Will your schools make the grade?

The annual South Carolina School Report Cards are scheduled to be released by October 15, 2022, and will, for the first time in several years, include ratings based on student assessment results and other performance measures. This year's ratings will also include changes to the formula used for calculations. Changes to school accountability moving forward include a new growth model for schools that will reward students who are achieving growth to proficiency. Register now and plan to spend your lunch hour (and a half) to learn about these changes and what we can expect to see across the state.
